DAYTON, Ohio, January 13, 1972 --- A special music program consisting of the many sounds of jazz, swing and pop music, is being presented by the University of Dayton's Performing and Visual Arts, Division of Music, on Sunday, January 23. The program, titled "A Festival of Jazz Bands," will include five bands. The Festival is free to the public and will be held in the Ballroom of the Kennedy Union.

The bands will play from 2:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m., with intermissions for changing of bands and between 5:00 and 6:00 p.m. for supper hour. During the latter intermission, the Snack Bar on the ground floor of the Kennedy Union will be open for anyone who wishes to have supper on campus.

The music selections will vary greatly, from "ballads and swing to contemporary jazz," says Mike Fitzpatric, who will direct the University of Dayton's Stage Band and is in charge of the program. The bands all have diverse styles, from the U.D. Band playing ballads to the Kitty Hawks playing pop music. The director of the Chaminade Band writes his own arrangements for the band's renditions.

The Arcanum High School Band begins the program at 2 p.m. to be followed by The University of Dayton Stage Band at 3 p.m. The Johnny Mack Concert Jazz Orchestra, a group of professional musicians under the direction of Johnny Mack, will play from 4:00 to 5:00. After the intermission, the Chaminade Jazz Laboratory Band will play, with Robert Quatman, composer, arranger and director, directing. The grand finale of the show will be the well-known Kitty Hawks, from Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, playing some of the great jazz and pop tunes of 30 years. They will be directed by Major Loren Johnson.
